

PROGRAM

National Recording Preservation Plan

- About This Program Publications & Reports Tools & Resources

Tools & Resources

Online Resources

Audio Storage at the Library of Congress's Packard Campus

Major Audio Collections at the Library of Congress

Video Tutorials

Preservation & Assessment Tools

Education & Training

Vintage Audio Formats and Equipment Information

Historical Background

Solve These Mystery Photos

Specialty Interviews and Articles

Book Interviews

Interviews

Articles

Library Profiles

Oral Histories

Major US Record Labels

Creating a Perfect At-Home Listening Space

Related Resources

Recorded Sound Research Center

Packard Campus of the Audio-Visual Conservation Center

National Jukebox

National Recording Registry

National Recording Preservation Foundation

Preservation Research Projects

Radio Preservation Task Force

Interviews

Transcripts of one-on-one interviews with major players and influencers in recorded sound.

Jennie Cataldo is an award-winning radio producer. Formerly with Ben Manilla Productions, she now head her own firm. She was interview by the Library of Congress on July 23, 2025.

Read the Interview (PDF, 161KB)

In the 1990's, Mara Purl relaunched the genre of radio soap opera with her creation "Milford-Haven." The story behind its making is as fascinating as any of the show's plots.

Read the Interview (PDF, 391KB)

Sam Brylawski is the former chief of the Recorded Sound division of the Library of Congress. He is also the editor of the American Discography Project.

Read the Interview (PDF, 160KB)

Ebonie Smith is the founder of the audio organization GenderAmplified.

Read the Interview (PDF, 173KB)

Adam Curry began his pioneering podcast "Daily Source Code" in 2003 and has remained a fixture of the medium ever since. This is an interview with the man known as "The Podfather."

Read the Interview (PDF, 213KB)